and hosted by Go Green Derry

Come learn about the status of bobcats in NH. The New Hampshire Fish and Game Department has teamed up with faculty at UNH to conduct a four-year study to examine the distribution and abundance of bobcats in the state, identify what habitat features they rely upon, develop an understanding of how bobcats respond to expanding human populations, and design a method to monitor changes in bobcat abundance. The study areas include both southwestern and south central NH.
